FISK & HATCH,
BANKERS,

Government and other Desirable Securities
No. 5 Nassau St., N. Y. recommend to investors the
First Mortgage Bonds
OF THE CENTRAL
Pacific R. R. Co.,
This Company is constructing under the patronage of the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT,
the Western end of the Great National Railway across the Continent
Their line will extend from Sacramento, California, across the Sierra Nevadas to the California State line traversing the richest and most populous section of California and thence through the great mining regions of the Territories, to the vicinity of Salt Lake City
It forms the sole Western link of the only route to the Pacific, which is adopted by Congress and aided by the issue of UNITED STATES BONDS
Their road is already completed equipped and running for 94 miles from Sacramento to within 12 miles of the summit of the Sierras and a large amount of the work of Grading, Tunnelling, &c, beyond that point has been accomplished
The FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS of the Company afford unusual inducements of Safety and Profit to Investors, for the following among other reasons, viz:
First The rate of interest is Six per Cent in Gold, payable semi annually in the City of New York.
Second The Principal is payable in Gold at maturity
Third The cost of the Bonds, Ninety five per Cent and accrued interest is Ten Per Cent less than that of the cheapest Six Per Cent Gold Bearing Bonds of the Government
Fourth The United States Government provides nearly half the amount necessary to build the entire road, and looks mainly to a small percentage on the future traffic for repayment
Fifth Owing to this liberal provision, accompanied with Extensive Grants of Public Lands, by which the Government fosters this great national enterprise, its success is rendered certain and its financial stability is altogether independent of the contingencies which attend ordinary railroad enterprises
Sixth The Security of its First Mortgage Bonds is therefore ample, and their character for safety and reliability is equalled only by that of the obligations of the Government itself
Seventh The net earnings of the completed portion are already largely in excess of the interest obligations which the Company will incur on twice the distance, and are steadily increasing, rendering the uninterrupted payment of the Interest absolutely certain
Eighth At the present rate of Gold they pay nearly 8½ per cent per annum, on the amount invested
The Bonds are issued in denominations of $1 000 with semi annual Gold Coupons attached payable in New York, and are offered for the present at 95 per cent and accrued interest (in currency) from January 1st.
Orders may be forwarded to us direct or through the principal Banks and Bankers in all parts of the country
Remittances may be made in drafts on New York or in Legal Tender Notes National Bank Notes, or other funds current in this city and the Bonds will be forwarded to any address by Express free of charge Inquiries for further particulars by mail or otherwise will receive punctual attention

Great Robbery and Attempt at Murder.

The Chicago Post gives the following particulars of a robbery and attempted murder in that city on Wednesday night last, the victim being Mr G W Lee, who occupied a lodging room in the fourth story of Reynolds block on Dearborn st It appears that Mr Lee went to his room at nine o clock in the evening, and shortly afterwards several gentlemen who occupied rooms close by, heard a heavy fall and groans in Mr Lee's room They at once went to his door and asked what was the matter, and received for an answer "I don't know—Oh! a horse has kicked me!" The voice subsequently added, "For God's sake open the door and give me help!" It was found that the door was secured from within, and the occupant was told to unlock it This at last he succeeded in doing, it being a spring latch which locks itself when the door is closed The door was opened, and behind it, in the northeast corner of the room, was found Mr Lee, in his shirt sleeves, his head terribly hacked his face, head, and neck covered with blood, and lying in a pool of clotted gore He was just able to speak, but was delirious On examination it was found that he had received a stab which had penetrated the cheek under the left eye passed under the flesh and back of the lower jaw bone, and penetrated below the chin into the left side of the neck Another wound was a frightful gash which extended from a little back of the left eye to a point below the left ear A more serious wound, perhaps, is over the left ear, fracturing the skull His coat was off, and the back of that was cut as if blows had been dealt with a knife before it was taken off The breast pocket of his coat was cut into but the pocketbook, containing over $600, had slipped down into the lining and was left there A peculiar inside pocket in his vest had been cut into, and a canvass sack containing, as Mr Lee says, $18,000 in 7 30 Government bonds, had been taken from it His gold watch and chain had also been taken In the wall near by, the plastering was indentured by some sharp instrument, probably the weapon which dealt the wounds

Physicians were called who cared for the wounded man, but it was long before he was wholly conscious The wounds are very severe, but unless inflammation reaches the brain, it is not likely that they will prove fatal

Mr Lee was formerly a heavy boot and shoe merchant in Haverhill, Mass, where his wife and three children now reside Five or six years ago, at the beginning of the war he met with heavy losses, through the failure of his Southern creditors He then came here, and has remained here most of the time since, part of the time engaged in the boot and shoe trade, but of late having no regular business He has traded considerably in horses, and except for his dealings with these, his friends are unwilling to have him receive the name of "sporting man."

It is said that Mr. Lee's bonds were all registered, in which case his loss will be confined to his watch and chain

An Important Letter from Secretary McCulloch upon the Financial Situation.

A number of Boston Merchants having invited Secretary McCulloch to a public dinner in that city, if he should come to New England, and expressing their satisfaction with his financial management, he writes a letter in reply saying that he will be unable to accept the invitation, and speaking of the general question of the finances as follows We copy from the Boston Advertiser

I need not assure you, gentleman, that it shall be my earnest purpose to continue to so administer my office as to justify the confidence you have so generously given me You must not expect, however, that our monthly statements for the rest of the present and the early part of the next fiscal year will be as satisfactory as they have been for many months past. The donations or bounties to soldiers preparations for a threatening Indian war even if the war itself should be avoided and very liberal appropriations of a miscellaneous character will cause unusually heavy drafts to be made upon the treasury while on the other hand, the general failure of the wheat crop and the partial failure of the corn crop last year, slow progress in the restoration of the Southern States to their proper relations with the federal government, the dulness of trade throughout the country—partly the result of a decrease of production, and partly of the natural reaction which always follows periods of excitement and speculation—together with reduced taxes, will very considerably affect our revenues This combination of adverse circumstances may retard a return to specie payments and with large issues of bonds to be made to the Pacific Railroad and its branches or divisions will prevent for a brief season a reduction of the public debt and may even render a temporary increase of it unavoidable but it will not weaken my faith in our ability to move on again in the right direction at an early day On the contrary, I believe that this check to our progress, will lead to improvements in our revenue laws and to an increase of efficiency in their execution, hasten the representation in Congress of the Southern States and secure greater economy in all branches of public service

Some surprise may exist that I have not for some months past reduced the circulation of United States notes according to the authority conferred upon me by Congress, and an inference may be drawn from it that my opinion upon the subject of contraction has undergone a change Permit me to say, therefore that I am as much persuaded as ever of the importance of an early return to specie payments and of a reduction of the currency, as a means of checking extravagance and speculation, and of increasing production, without which all efforts to restore permanently the specie standard will be ineffectual What the country needs, in order that specie payments may be resumed and maintained and real prosperity secured, is an increase of industry and a restoration of our former habits of economy As a people among ourselves, we must earn more and spend less In our trade with foreign nations we must sell more or buy less Any different perscription for existing financial evils is in my judgment quackery That contraction will tend to bring about this desirable condition of things I have never doubted, but I have nevertheless suspended the reduction of the circulation of United States notes, and for the following reasons; either of which would perhaps have justified my course and all of which have had more or less influence in determining it

First The views of a majority of the members of Congress, as indicated by a number of votes last winter, were adverse to immediate contraction and I have not felt at liberty to place myself in principal opposition to the law making branch of the government, without whose support I must be powerless

Second There have existed for some months past anxious forebodings of financial troubles, and while they continued I have been apprehensive that a contraction of the currency, the object and effect of it being misunderstood or misinterpreted, might produce a panic in the commercial cities, which extending over the country and beyond the speculative interests would injuriously affect legitimate business and the revenue dependent upon it

Third Large amounts of interest bearing notes are to be paid or converted within the present and next fiscal year, to which it seemed prudent for me first to direct my attention, leaving the question of a curtailment of the circulating notes to be determined from month to month, by the condition of the country and of the treasury

Fourth Anticipating that the failure of the crops and the other circumstances alluded to, would seriously affect business I have considered it important that the public mind should not be diverted, by the criticisms and complaints of those who are opposed to contraction, from the real causes of trouble that a sound policy should not be put in peril by being made the 'scapegoat' for evils resulting from different causes

You will not infer from what I have written that I am not hopeful in regard to our finances al future It has been my constant aim so to manage the national finances as to aid in bringing the country to a healthy financial condition without being subjected to the severe disasters which many judicious persons have supposed a large debt and the derangement of business, and the diminution of industry occasioned by the war and a redundant currency, would render inevitable The causes which are now operating against us are exceptional and temporary The prospect of a good crop of winter wheat was never better More spring wheat has been sowed and more corn has or will be planted this season than ever before The people are beginning to comprehend again this important truth, that prosperity is the result of labor, that industry and economy are as indispensable to national as well as to individual wealth I shall be grievously disappointed if another year does not witness a large increase of industry, of enterprise, and of revenue, decided progress towards a resumption of specie payments, and a steady reduction of the public debt

Please pardon me for writing so long a letter, and believe me to be with sentiments of the highest regard,

Your ob't servant,
H McCULLOCH,

Hon William Gray and others

WASHINGTON, May 28.

The government up to this hour has rec'd nothing further about Mexican affairs The situation has been much canvassed in official circles during the day and it seems to be pretty generally believed that Maximilian will be shot The answer of Juarez to our messenger in his behalf is, as was stated last night, quite non committal On the one hand he says he will give due consideration to the representations of this government on the other he offers the indignation he feels in common with his countrymen at the execution of his soldiers by the usurper—The Austrian minister expresses fears that Maximilian will not be treated as a prisoner of war The Mexican minister is rejoiced at the news of his capture, but is very reticent when questioned as to his probable fate The Secretary of State is yet hopeful that Maximilian will be spared, and finds warrant, it is said, for this hope in his knowledge of the situation

The business of the Japanese commissioners has finally come to light They have, after considerable negotiation with the President and Mr Seward, become the purchasers of the ironclad ram Stonewall, for which they pay $400,000 in currency This includes the vessel and her armament, and we are to put her in firstclass order She is now lying at the navy yard in this city It is understood that Mr Seward was at first opposed, for reasons of state policy, to selling any guns with her, but the President saw no objection, particularly as foreign governments are buying guns from our foundries Her armament consists of Armstrong guns The Japanese leave for home in about two weeks.—Special to Boston Adv.

ADVANTAGE OF BEING A GREAT RASCAL. The Sun says that the friends of Ketchum, the forger, are making strenuous efforts to procure a pardon for the culprit. The general rule of justice in the country seems to be, "the greater the crime the less the penalty;" and we therefore presume that Ketchum will soon be at liberty. If his rascalities had amounted to only four or five hundred dollars, he could hardly have hoped for mercy, but having accomplished the unprecedented feat of swindling to the extent of four or five millions of dollars, the case is quite different. The rebel Wirz, who had the misfortune to be placed in command of the prison pen at Andersonville, was hung like a dog, but Jeff. Davis, whom Wirz served, is as comfortable as a clam. This policy practically sets a premium upon great crimes, and admonishes one who is lawlessly disposed that "excelsior" should be the motto of the base as well as of the noble ambition.

Spicy Correspondence with a Female Rebel—What an Amiable Secesh Woman thinks of the "Yanks."

[The following letters have been sent us for publication. They may afford some amusement for our readers.]

CITRONVILLE, Ala., April 18, 1867.

My Dear Old Friend and Cousin:

Yours bearing date March 18th, came in due time. * * * *

I was not aware that you, a Blue-nose, and one of our Majesty's loyal subjects, thought it your duty to enlist in the Yankee army, to assist in soldering what was once the Union. We know that the Yanks hired Irish, Scotch, and Dutch by the thousand, to help them free our negroes, but it never entered my rebel head that I had a British born cousin whose political and religious duty was allegiance to her most gracious Majesty, and not to the Yankee government. Verily "evil communications corrupt good manners;" and, allow me to add, you have sadly retrograded since "you and I were boys;" and furthermore let me say that if Alex's old Bob, and father's cream-colored Mare, could be brought to life, and you could be allowed the privilege of holding converse as of yore, while riding over Tower Hill you would, instead of the former topics for discussion, get the greatest tongue lashing that your correspondent is capable of giving, (and folks say that Mrs. Williams can talk when occasion requires.) Would I not have "dropped the tear of sympathy, and held the cooling draught to your parched lips if Heaven, sweet Heaven had allowed me the privilege of doing so, while you were languishing in a southern prison?" I answer, humanity alone would prompt such an act, and I almost doubt if even that would have been sufficient, when I found that you were our enemy, fighting against a cause as sacred to us as our lives, and second only to Heaven itself. I wonder how you suppose we think and feel towards Northern people—particularly those of the Sumner and Thad. Stevens stripe? Contempt! unutterable contempt for the whole race. Some of our Down East kindred are old John Brown worshipers, and they are welcome to all such idols—every one to their taste.

Our Williams relatives are all good Copperheads—sensible people, always were.—And so you were robbed while you were a prisoner!—glad of it, served you right, you had no business there; have you forgotten the fable of old dog Tray who was found in bad company? Again, the Yanks true to their native instincts, commenced the game of stealing, and it was necessary, according to mathematics, that the rule should work both ways, and "old one-eye struck you with a bayonet and cursed you for a d—d Yank." How humiliating to be cursed at all, much more for anything so mean and contemptible as a Yank, even by a one-eyed Reb. I'd divide the last crust with that same one-eye, for bayonetting a Yank that he found on his knees, even though he was in the act of drinking from a muddy brook; recollect that gutter was in Dixie—our own glorious, lovely, but downtrodden and oppressed Dixie, and Yanks had no business there.

You complain of the treatment to your prisoners! I presume it was as good as they deserved. How could you expect humane treatment, when you consider the circumstances that made you prisoners. Again, you draw avidious comparisons between our treatment of you, and you of us. Well, for argument, we will concede that point, tho' I don't believe it, for I know of too many of our brave boys who wore "the grey," that froze, starved, and were butchered in northern prisons. Did you ever, in your far off heathen land, hear of such a place as Ship Island? There was and is such a place, and it was there that northern niggers were placed over our prisoners, and subjected them to the most diabolical treatment that was ever dreamed of, and of which the rack and the inquisition of the dark ages, sank into nothingness, comparatively. I need not cite you to Ship Island alone, that was only a solitary instance. I could tell you of our own home, desecrated by the vile wretches, my only son struck by a drunken wretch in Yankee uniform with a long sword and placed under arrest, for simply saying that which had been our every day topic for four years, viz: Hatred of everything this side of Mason & Dixon's line, and that he was glad that Old Abe was dead and hoped Seward would soon follow [illegible]

[illegible] believe in such,) are angels compared to Yankee soldiers, in my estimation.

Now, in conclusion let me say, that when you write to me, remember that I am a rebel dyed in the wool; that our children are double and twisted rebs; that my dear departed husband was secesh all the way thro', and that nothing a disciple of Horace Greeley, Beecher, Stephens, or any of their clique can say in extenuation of their deeds, past, present, or to come, will ever be tolerated by one of us; but if you will cast off the Yankee robe, and be blue-nose John A. Foster once again, I will be glad to extend to you the hand of fellowship, cousinship, and ship of our glorious Majesty, Queen Victoria, and three times three cheers for our own darling Dixie.

EMILY C. WILLIAMS.

BANGOR, May 12, 1867.

My Dear Old Friend:

You seem surprised that I, a British born subject should so far forget my allegiance to the English Government as to take up arms in defence of the Union, or, as you term it, to free our negroes. But you also lose sight of the fact that you too are a British subject—having thrown off that chain, and put on instead, the yoke of bondage, a term applicable to both slave and master. You forget, too, that that same English Government was the first to abolish slavery, as a curse that was gnawing at her very vitals. Alas, that we should be so slow in following her example until necessity compelled it.

Like many of the pro-slavery party here at the North, you will persist in calling this a war to free the negro, when this measure was reluctantly adopted by our lamented, martyred President as a positive necessity. In his reply to Horace Greeley, who, in a letter, urged this very thing, he said, if he "could save the Union without touching slavery he would do so, but if that became necessary, he would do that also; but the Union must be saved at all hazards." These are not his precise words, but the substance of them. Fremont was removed for adopting that very policy. But when forbearance ceased to be a virtue, the South using, as a means, the slaves, to resist the authority of the Government, he issued the proclamation declaring them free.

You ask if I have heard of Ship Island, and refer defiantly to the atrocities practiced there. I answer, yes, and in your own language, I will repeat, "served them right." But that term is often misapplied in a christian land. The Indians might urge the same plea in defence of their barbarous atrocities in the famous Indian wars. But the negroes, true to their teaching, when they found the tables turned, and their former masters in their power, is it to be wondered at that they made use of that power?

I remember, too, Fort Pillow, where, after the garrison had surrendered, the negroes were inhumanly butchered. Also, Memphis, New Orleans, Andersonville, and many other places too numerous to mention. I don't blame you for not wishing to believe these things. But facts are stubborn things. I happened to see, myself, a poor lad shot dead for simply looking out of the window, by a rebel guard. Served him right, I suppose, but if I had had a revolver just then, I would have served him right, if I had died the next minute.

The references you produce in support of your favorite theory fail to serve you, I think. True, the Williamses were known as sensible people, not, however, because they believed that slavery was right. You would hardly be willing your father's family should be judged by such a test, because they believed it a crime to deal in human beings; nor yet our venerable friend, Hon. James Brown. I well remember a conversation I had with him some eight years ago, or more, in reference to the then discussed topic of Annexation, hearing him express himself somewhat as follows: "I believe I represent the sentiment of a majority of this Province when I declare that this project (Annexation) would meet with far less opposition, were it not for the fact that that infernal system of slavery were part and parcel of the American Constitution. For that alone would I oppose it with all my power." Let us make a more general application, and see what progress the world has made in six years, in this sentiment. The emancipation of twenty-five million serfs in Russia; the liberation of four million slaves in the United States, and the virtual manumission of three million negroes in Brazil. Thirty-two million of men restored to freedom in six short years. Do you believe in human progress? Or do you think, as in my case the world is "sadly retrograding?"

You speak of what was "once the Union." Did the secessionists, then, gain their point, and establish a government of their own? Why, then, did they lay down their arms, and give up the contest, and why do not other nations recognize their claim?

You complain of the indignities your son suffered from a drunken wretch for expressing his hatred of the North, and his exultation at the news of Lincoln's death. It was only for the latter sentiment he was so treated, and here let me tell you he got off much easier than he would have done, here at the North, had he given expressions of joy at the murder of that good man. Here, in this city, Bangor, when the dreadful news came, a certain person so far forgot himself as to shout and cheer at the (to him) good news, when he was set upon by the exasperated people, and with great difficulty rescued by the police, and locked up for twenty-four hours, to save him from a dreadful fate. Nor is this a solitary instance. And even now, I doubt very much if the utterance of such sentiments would be tolerated. Disloyal, and even treasonable sentiments would be suffered, but a reproach on the name of that good man, never.

You seem to reject my comparison of the treatment of prisoners, North and South.—I know whereof I write, and thousands, both North and South, will bear me witness whether you believe it or not. I do not doubt that our soldiers were apt to plunder at times, nor is it to be wondered at if, as you say, our army was, "made up of Dutch and Irish." But with you it was the rule; with us the exception. I, for one, have more than once been placed on guard over rebel property, (when our boys would have gladly purloined a chicken, pig or something else,) with strict orders to protect it all hazards, and deep and bitter have been the mutterings of the soldiers at such a restraint upon what they considered their rights, if not their privileges. I very much regret the change in your feelings from what they were in our happier days, and your hatred of the people of the North and [illegible] friends who [illegible] meat. But I see by [illegible]

[illegible] be opened to the fact that in reality the best friends are those who believe that freedom in its broadest sense, is the greatest blessing ever showered upon man.

Write me again, and believe me, as of yore,

Your friend and cousin,

JOHN A. FOSTER.

THE FAILURE OF FRASER, TRENHOLM & CO. No further particulars have been received of the failure of the English firm of Fraser, Trenholm & Co.; but from the known large assets of the firm in this country, it is expected that the suspension will be only temporary. It is said the firm bought immense amounts of property in Charleston, and large tracts of land in South Carolina, during the war, paying for them in Confederate currency, and in this way acquired vast wealth for a merely nominal consideration. It is asserted that from one-half to two-thirds of Charleston is owned by the firm. Reports also state that last year they paid taxes upon $14,000,000 of property in South Carolina.

In working an old slate quarry, closed one hundred years ago, on the estate of Ballachulish, says the Oban Times, the workmen came the other day upon an old bore closed with a wooden plug, and containing gunpowder in a position which it was tho't had not been disturbed for 150 years. On driving, the powder was found as explosive as ever.

"Damages $25,000" seems to be the prevailing figure at San Francisco. By late papers we see the San Jose Railroad Company has been sued for $25,000 damages for a laborer's arm crushed; the Daily Alta is sued by an aggrieved house carpenter for $25,000 damages, and the owner of a runaway horse is sued for $25,000 by a man whom said horse knocked down and injured.

The Washington correspondent of the Charleston Courier writes that "the appearance of Jefferson Davis at the November term of the U. S. Circuit Court will be merely formal. It is well understood that no trial for treason in his case, or that of any other exConfederate, will ever take place."

The Albany Journal says "it is, of course, impossible to foresee what combinations may grow out of the reconstruction movements now in progress, or how these will affect the action of the next Republican National Convention. Today, Gen. Grant is the strongest man in the United States who could be named for the Presidency."

PETROLEUM FOR GENERATING STEAM.—An interesting experiment has been going on at the Charleston navy yard during the past three days, under the supervision of a board of engineers, for the purpose of testing the value of crude petroleum as fuel for generating steam on board of seagoing vessels. The vessel used for this purpose is the iron screw steamer Palos, Capt. Wallace.—The test was concluded last evening, and Commodore Rogers, commandant at the yard, is so well satisfied with the success of the experiment that he will apply to the department at Washington for permission to make a trial trip at sea with the Palos.—[Boston Herald.

Dr. Schenck on Dyspepsia.

SYMPTOMS, CAUSES AND REMEDY.

Symptoms of Dyspepsia—A sense of fullness, tightness, and weight in the stomach, together with flatulency, acidity, sour, offensive belching of wind, water-brash and vomiting, and a great deal of what a person calls an all-gone feeling at the pit of the stomach; frequently there is also a palpitation of the heart, which physicians mistake for heart disease, and when the stomach is in this condition it is coated with a mucous or slime. The rough fibrous portions of the stomach, similar to what we see in tripe is what throws out the gastric juice, and when the stomach gets a thick coat of slime on it, it prevents the gastric juice from flowing, and digestion ceases. Schenck's seaweed tonic dissolves this mucus or slime, and restores the stomach to its natural condition.

Schenck's Mandrake Pills are also required to carry off this morbid matter. Two-thirds of the cases of Consumption are caused from this diseased state of the stomach; the liver becoming torpid, it ceases to throw out bile, and in a short time the whole system is deranged. The mucous membrane of the bronchial tubes sympathizes with the other organs, and before the patient is aware of it, he or she has Bronchial or Pulmonary Consumption.

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup cannot act freely thro' the blood when the system is in this locked-up condition, without the aid of the Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills. The Liver has all of the venous blood to strain, and when it gets in a morbid condition, blood and bile run through the system mixed, and the whole body becomes so low, and the blood so thick it can hardly run through the veins. In a majority of cases hemorrhages occur from the thick condition of the blood. The Mandrake Pills act on the Liver similar to calomel, or they do what that does—it unlocks the gall bladders, starts the bile, and the blood begins to circulate naturally through the veins, and the hemorrhages cease. If, when persons are attacked with hemorrhage, they would first take a good purgative, something that would act on the liver, they would soon be relieved from bleeding from the lungs, and it is the only way, for astringents are only temporary, and irritate the bronchial tubes, and lay the groundwork for consumption.

DR. SCHENCK will be professionally at his rooms every week, 32 Bond Street, New York; and 35 Hanover Street, Boston, from 9 A. M. until 3 P. M. He gives advice free, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer the charge is $5.

His medicines are for sale by all druggists and dealers. Also a full supply at all times at his rooms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic each $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 the half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents per box.

All the World Over.
There are but few spots on our globe where HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are not known; and, when known, appreciated.
In the UNITED STATES and BRITISH AMERICA it has become a household word. As a protective against malaria, epidemic fevers, Fever and Ague and other illnesses, produced by miasmatic influences, it stands far ahead of all other preparations and is so considered by the most eminent physicians of the day.
In SOUTH AND CENTRAL AMERICA, MEXICO and WEST INDIES it has obtained a firm hold on the minds of the people, and is implicitly relied upon as a certain preventive and cure for the many malarious diseases incident to those tropical regions.
In AUSTRALIA, TASMANIA, NEW ZEALAND, and adjacent islands, its progress has been marvellous. Merchants, Miners, Farmers, Manufacturers and Squatters, all endorse it. Thousands already has it saved from the pernicious effects of miasma arising from the low swampy grounds so prevalent in those countries.
In CHINA and the EAST INDIES it is working its way with rapid strides, and is extensively used in the hospital.
In Conservative EUROPE, even, its influence is being felt, and the day is not far distant when HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS will become in the old world what it now is in the new—a never failing joy to the afflicted. may 16sn

An Effectual Worm Medicine
BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS,
OR WORM LOZENGES. Much sickness, undoubtedly, with children and adults, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms. The "VERMIFUGE COMFITS," although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child.—This valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be safe and sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children.
CHILDREN HAVING WORMS require immediate attention, as neglect of the trouble often causes prolonged sickness.
SYMPTOMS OF WORMS IN CHILDREN are often overlooked. Worms in the stomach and bowels cause irritation, which can be removed only by the use of a sure remedy. The combination of ingredients used in making Brown's "Vermifuge Comfits" is such as to give the best possible effect with safety.

Hon Albert Smith, formerly member of Congress from Maine died at his residence in this city today aged 72

The 37th annual convention of the New England Anti Slavery Society was held today

A series of resolutions were adopted the first of which declares that in the long suffering of this nation under the crafty policy of Andrew Johnson, patience has had its perfect work and in such ill judged forbearance we recognize not the virtue of a great magnanimity but the folly and wickedness of a shortsighted moral sense and a connivance of wrong

The resolves further protest against any longer denial to the colored people of all the social and political rights to which they are so clearly entitled allude to the Mobile riot as evidence of the reviving insolence of the defeated rebels and of their determination to reenact resistance to the legal and loyal authority of our government on every available opportunity, denounce the shameful treason of the so called Christian pulpit on these vital themes, declare that the release of Jefferson Davis proves the South still triumphant in the executive councils and call for a large measure of confiscation of Southern lands to give the negro race that basis of independent action, without which the ballot is so often a mere shadow

Wendell Phillips, as usual, was the leading speaker

Hon Henry Wilson was called upon to address the convention, but he excused himself

Correspondence of the Daily Whig

Letter from Belfast

BELFAST, Me, May 28, 1867

Messrs Wheeler & Lynde

I don t know but I had better pass the weather item in silence, for I can't possibly do the subject justice During this spring it has been execrable to use a mild term I know that farmers are proverbial for fault finding as regards it, but they are now perfectly excusable There never was a spring more unpropitious for farm work By the time the soil gets dry enough to cultivate, an other rain storm sets in, and it has continued so up to this date It has been impossible to work low springy land, and unless we have continued fine weather immediately a large acreage must go uncultivated As it is, there will not be so much seed put into the ground as the average, and many crops will come off very late in autumn

One of our most worthy and respected fellow townsmen has been removed from among us Otis B Woods died last Friday afternoon, aged 35 years He had been an invalid and great sufferer for many months Mr Woods was one of our most active and energetic business men, and was particularly identified with the temperance cause,—and labored long and effectually for its advancement in this vicinity

It will not be a season of shipbuilding activity here this summer There s but one vessel now on the stocks though we understand two or three of small measurement will be projected and built during the season

Your readers will have noticed in your columns some time since, an item respecting the new fertilizer originating in the adjoining town of Morrill To give it a local habitation and a name, we have dubbed it "Waldo Plaster" It is formed by grinding a peculiar stone found in that section, in the same manner that common plaster is ground from gypsum We have since learned that it will be experimented with quite extensively this season, and if it proves as valuable as expected, it will be a decided acquisition We shall watch these trials with interest as well as experiment personally, and report results

The Supreme Court adjourned on Friday No additional civil cases of interest were acted upon A large number were continued referred, and settled But two criminal cases came up —one against a party for bringing liquor into the State with intent to sell in violation of law, the other against the boy Patterson, referred to in my previous letter as one of the parties implicated in breaking into and robbing stores here last winter He was convicted of larceny of a boat at Isle a Haut and sentenced to sixty days in county jail

There is no excitement on the question of voting on the amendment to the prohibitory law next Monday The vote will be light Apropos of the condition of temperance affairs here, we learn there was not a single complaint of liquor selling before the Grand Jury at the late term of court

A movement is on foot towards taking some measures in regard to a public celebration on the coming 4th of July So you see there are signs that we are waking up in reality So mote it be

I see that the unavailing correspondent of the Portland Argus says there are 92 Lodges of Good Templars in this State Let me correct him and substitute 205, which was the whole number a month since, and there are probably ten or a dozen more now

We learn that parties from Pennsylvania are searching for coal in the town of Penobscot, Hancock County They say the indications are good, Dr. Epps of the expetuary notwithstanding. A portion of the ledge lately examined contains the coal The company have been at work a week or more

A deluge of dramas and travelling shows —we do not say humbugs—are daily upon us They carry a large amount of money out of the State in return for but very little good in exchange. Our city will double the price of their licenses.

Yours, &c, QUIHAM

SUMNER ON RUSSIAN-AMERICA During the negotiations for the purchase of Russian America, a speech was made, in secret session, by Senator Sumner, in which the whole question was elaborately reviewed and considered, historically, geographically and diplomatically We learn from Mr Sumner that the acquisition of Russian America was under consideration during the administration of President Polk, and that it was revived under Mr Buchanan The chief motive in obtaining possession of the Russian portion of this continent appears to have been a fear that Great Britain contemplated negotiations for the same purchase The question was lost sight of on the outbreak of the rebellion, but it was brought up again and terminated at the earliest opportunity after peace was restored The aim of Mr Sumner, throughout a protracted speech, is to show that the United States made a very good bargain, and that the country is by no means so bad as has been reported, the climate being milder than that of countries in the same latitude on the Asiatic coast The learned Senator goes back to the discoverer of that portion of the continent, one Behring, who, sailing under a commission from Peter the Great, visited Russian America in 1741, and afterwards wrote an account of the country and its native inhabitants If the possession of this piece of territory should prove of any importance to the United States, the sum paid for it will appear insignificant

A TERRIBLE SITUATION. From the reports of marine disasters published this week we copy the following It is but one of the many terrible incidents which are constantly occurring to those who go down upon the sea in ships Many "missing" vessels, have under similar circumstances, gone to the bottom and left none to tell the tale.

Ship Eastward Ho, Byrne, from New York at Sydney, N S. W., March 9th, reports when off the Cape of Good Hope on the 4th of January, in lat. 40° 30' South, vessel bowling along before a strong gale at 11 knots per hour, at 9 30 P M, suddenly an island of ice two hundred feet high, was discovered right ahead close aboard, the helm was promptly put down and her head way partially deadened, but there was no room to clear the danger, and with a terrific crash her bows struck against the floating mass. The sheer rail was carried away as far as the foremast on both sides; knightheads, timber head and bitts, together with the stem and forefoot ground into splinters, the spar deck started from under the plank sheer, 13 inches for 20 feet abaft each bow, and the bolt ends were driven into the water line. The bowsprit and fore-mast, with everything attached, went over the side, together with the main-topmast, top gallant and royal masts, [illegible] The vessel was then [illegible] The [illegible] was at once [illegible] The [illegible] was [illegible] The [illegible] was [illegible] The [illegible] was

SILENT FRIENDS

How dull beside the brightness
Of [illegible] world of rest,
Were the joys of earthly splendor
To the visions of the blest!
In their white and shining raiment
Do they [illegible] the world
Whose living map of action
Is before their gaze unfurled.

They are with us in the morning
When the fresh gleam of the day
Drives the misty veil of darkness
From our onward path away
They [illegible] to cheer, to strengthen
The heart and purpose true,
And to whisper words of solace
Our own thought never knew

They uphold us in the noontide,
In the burden of the day
When the weary soul is sinking
Beneath its load of clay
To our lips they lift the vintage
Of the chaliced Blood of Life,
And are near us in the battle
With the angry host of strife

They are with us in the evening
In the shadows opal and gray
When the light upon the mountains
Creeps with languid steps away
For brighter shine their glory,
As we enter on the dark
Their feet the journey upward
Point for us a golden mark

Not alone are we, though silent
And unseen our heavenly friends!
We may not behold their beauty
Till our earthly lesson ends
Yet we hear their still, sweet voices
Chiming softly through the night.
Wait in patience for the coming
Of the Children of the Light!

How we Trapped the Burglars.

We lived in a terrace at the time of which my tale is laid, in what we may term a sub district of London, for we were within five miles of Charing Cross, and the dark month of December was upon us Robberies had been frequent in our neighborhood, and no less than three houses out of the ten in the terrace had been entered by burglars and robbed, and yet no discovery of the thieves had taken place So ably, also, had the work of entry been accomplished, that in no case had the inmates been alarmed and it was not until the servants had descended in the morning that the discovery of a robber was made

In two of these cases an entrance had been effected through a pantry window, by removing a pane of glass, and cutting a small hole in the shutter This window was on the ground floor, and could easily be reached from the outside In the third robbery an upper window was entered by means of a knife which forced back the fastening, and of course allowed the sash to be raised

So rapidly had these robberies occurred, that the whole neighborhood was alarmed —The police shook their heads and looked knowing, but did nothing and what was to be much lamented failed to find any clue to the robbers, who, they at the same time asserted, were evidently not regular cracksmen

Affairs had reached such a stage, that we used to sleep with a revolver close to our bed side, when we happened to have a friend who came to stay with us a few days This friend was an old jungle hunter, and was au fait with every artifice by which the animal creation might be captured He was delighted at the idea of having an adventure with burglars, and scorned the belief that they were more than a match in cunning for even the average bush hunter It was in vain that we assured him it was an axiom that an accomplished robber could effect an entrance to any house, and that instruments were used of such a nature as to cut holes in doors without noise, and, in fact, that through roofs and sky lights, down chimneys and up water spouts, an accomplished burglar could easily enter the best defended houses in the kingdom

Our friend's argument was, that a burglar was a man on watch, who took advantage of the residents being asleep and unsuspecting, 'but,' said he, 'let my suspicions be raised, and I will defy any burglar to enter my house without my having due warning because, although I may be asleep, still, I shall hear his approach, and can then make my arrangements to welcome him'

Although we were not desirous of having our house robbed, yet we wished much that our friend's confidence should be taken out of him

A few days after this conversation, the police informed us that several suspicious characters had been seen about and recommended us to be on the alert. Here, then, was a good opportunity to test my friend's skill and wakefulness, so having informed him of the policeman's warning, I asked him if he felt confident to undertake the defense of the house

'Certainly,' he replied, 'I only demand a dark lantern, and stipulate that you have a pair of goloshes beside your bed I also must go to bed last, and no servant is to go down before me in the morning, nor is any one to walk about during the night, then I will defy the burglars'

Thus it was agreed that my friend was to act the part of guardian, and was to commence his charge on the ensuing night

Three nights had passed, and no alarm had occurred, and no robberies taken place, we began to think our alarms had been groundless but our friend said that now was the very time to be most guarded, for no wise burglar would rob them when he was expected, besides, he said, we have not had a windy night yet, it is when doors and windows rattle, and the chimney rumbles, that robberies are best effected not when every strange noise is audible; thus he said he did not give up hopes of having something to say to the robbers before his visit terminated

I usually sleep very lightly, and therefore awoke readily upon hearing a tap at my bed room door during the fourth night of our watch It was my friend's voice that answered me, and we were requested to come out at once

'As soon as I strike a lucifer match' I replied

'Nonsense, a light will spoil the whole thing Come in the dark in a dressing gown and your goloshes, and come at once'

I was soon provided as he wished, and ready to descend the stairs in the dark

'Now, remember,' said my friend, 'seven steps to the first landing, two or others afterwards, and the fourth step cracks abominably, so be careful to descend without any noise'

The night was boisterous and many a window and door shook and rattled, so that the slight noise we made in descending the stairs was not sufficient to have alarmed even the most keen eared listener We descended to the ground floor, entered the pantry, and then, standing perfectly still devoted ourselves to listening

In a very few seconds we heard a grating noise on the shutter, then an interval of quiet, and again a noise; presently the window was gently raised, and again all was quiet. The noise of a heavy vehicle passing the house seemed to afford an opportunity for a more decided effort, for while the rattle of the wheels was loudest, a crack sounded from the shutter, and we could hear the bolt forced, for the shutter was gently moved

'Don't stir till I do and hold your breath if possible,' whispered my friend in my ear

I found the latter a difficult request to comply with, for my heart was beating with rapidity, and thumping against my ribs in a most exciting way, still I stood quiet, and trusted to my friend.

[illegible] observations than the proceedings of the robbers, the shutter was pushed back in the most slow and steady manner; had there been even a bell fastened to it, I doubt whether it would have been made to ring. At intervals there was a rest from work, evidently for the purpose of listening, [illegible] one of the robbers placed his leg across the window-sill, and lightly descended into the pantry

The night, even out of doors, was very dark, and in the corner where we stood it was black as Erebus [illegible] therefore, were quite undistinguishable, and the only chance of discovering [illegible]

The first burglar was soon followed by a second, [illegible]

[illegible] position was an agreeable one, as I was armed with only a sword, a weapon however, I knew how to use while of my friend's means of offense or defense I knew nothing

I had not long to wait, for a lucifer was struck by one of the men immediately, and the room lighted up, at the same instant my friend drew up the slide of the dark lantern, and flashed the light upon the faces of the two men, at the same time showing them the muzzle of a revolver—pointed towards them

'If either of you move I'll put a couple of bullets into you,' said my friend as he placed his back against the window by which the men had entered 'Now drop that crow bar,' he continued in a voice of authority 'down with it, and you,' he said to me, 'pull open the shutter, and shout for the police'

The idea that is generally entertained of a burglar is that he is a man of great size, strength, and daring, and that he would in an encounter annihilate any moderate man When, then, the light revealed the faces and forms of the men we had captured, our humble self, although no great pugilist, yet felt able to defeat either of them if it came to a matter of fists, and I must own that the pale and astonished faces of the men were not indications of any very great courage

Our shout for police was shortly answered; and the burglars having been subdued by the sight of the revolver, the muzzle of which pointed first at one, then at the other, were captured by the police, three of whom were speedily on the spot, and conveyed to the lock up, whilst we and a detective who had been brought down from London some days previously, examined the details by which the men had effected their entrance

'You were very lucky to hear them, especially on such a night,' said the detective 'when they're in they move like mice We know them and I expect they'll get seven years'

The man was about correct, for one, the older offender was sentenced to six the other to five years penal servitude

'It will, I suppose, be of no use trying to sleep again to night, for it is three o'clock,' said my friend

'I cannot sleep' was my reply, 'and I am dying to know how you found out that they were approaching the house'

Being then, of one mind, we partly robed ourselves, lighted a fire in the kitchen, and soon, being provided with cigars and grog, got very comfortable, and satisfied with our work My friend then began his account which he gave very much in the following words

'The burglar, as I told you, has usually the advantage of surprise, he can select the time at which he makes his attack, and if his proceedings are carried on cautiously, he enters a house before he is heard Few men would, however venture to do so unless they previously had good information as to the interior arrangements of the house, this they obtain either from servants, tradesmen, or some one who visits the locality, or they come themselves as tramps, or with some trifle to sell Thus, if there are bells attached to the doors or windows, they find it out, and they know tolerably well the domestic arrangements of the locality they purpose trying their skill upon There are, too, conventional methods of protecting a house, such as bolts, bars, chains, locks, &c, all of which require merely time and proper instruments to overcome It heretofore occurred to me that novelty and simplicity combined would be more than a match for the coarse intellect of the burglar, and thus I made my plans, which you see answered very well'

'No doubt about that,' we replied

'Well, now come up to my room,' he continued, 'and see the apparatus'

We entered his room, and there, close beside his pillow, was a tin box, in the bottom of which was a key

'This is nearly all the apparatus,' he said 'but you notice some thread fastened to the key, trace that thread, and you will find it passes that small hole in the sash, from there it goes down into the back yard, which is only four yards wide I therefore tied across the back yard, and about two feet from the ground, some fine black thread, this was made fast one side, but slipped through a loop, and led up to my window on the other The thread then passed through the hole I had bored in the window sash, and was then made fast to this key Under the key I placed the tin box, you see and over the key was a bar, to prevent its being dragged up more than six inches Each night, before I went to bed, I just drew the string tight, and fastened it in the yard, taking care to free it before morning so as to keep the plan a secret If then, a man or any thing above two feet high, walked up the yard, the string was pressed against the bar and the string broken, when the key, of course fell into the tin box, making quite noise enough to wake me Immediately the string broke it would fall to the ground and the person who had done all this would not have felt anything, the resistance being so slight I must own I should have preferred horse-hair to thread, but as it was, the latter answered very well I was fast asleep when the key fell, but immediately awoke, and taking my lantern outside my door, lighted it and came to you, for I knew that only a man in the back yard could have dropped that key So now you see how the burglars were trapped for you know all the rest'

'Certainly, you succeeded, and so we ought not to be critical,' we replied 'But suppose they had entered by the front window instead of the back, how then?'

'You see this thread,' he said, grasping one that was near the door, 'pull it'

I did so, and immediately a tin cup dropped into the hand basin

'That thread goes down stairs, and is fastened across the front window, but I broke that off as I went out of my room, so that it should not impede my journey down stairs Thus I could at once know whether a man was approaching the back door or had entered by the front window, and in either case, I think I could have captured him'

Simplicity had certainly been adopted in the present case, but the means had shown themselves to be efficient

'People are usually very silly,' continued our friend 'when they hear, or think they hear, suspicious noises of a night The first thing they usually do is to light a candle, which proclaims to the robber that he has been heard and must escape, then they go about the house with this candle and make a great noise, so that a man may have plenty of time to get away or hide himself Instead of this, if a person were to listen intently he would be able to hear any suspicious noises distinctly, and decide upon their cause, then, as he must know his own house better than any robber, he is best off of the two in the dark, and when, having armed himself, he has quietly opened his door, he may wait and listen until the robbers are heard moving about when he can take such steps as may seem necessary

If every person was to plan what was to be done in case of robbers entering his house, and then were to carry out this if the occasion required it, burglary would be too dangerous and unsuccessful a proceeding to be profitable or popular, and thus might be given up for a more honest means of obtaining a livelihood so that really we may consider ourselves to have done the community at large a benefit, when we [illegible] of these gentry [illegible] houses to be robbed [illegible] their neighbor's property.'

We were once in a church where the clergyman was reading the Gospel for the day, under the exasperating presence of an enemy's dog, which persisted in flapping his heavy tail continuously on the floor of his mistress's pew, after the manner of big dogs under durance. The clergyman at last read out, in the confusion of his feelings, this extraordinary scriptural lesson 'The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself Turn out that dog if you please, it is extremely wrong to bring a dog into church.'

Dr. J. W. POLAND'S

HUMOR DOCTOR.

A POSITIVE REMEDY FOR ALL KINDS OF HUMORS,

PARTICULARLY

Erysipelas, Nettle Rash, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, Carbuncles, Boils & Piles.

IT IS VERY EASY TO SAY OF THIS, OR ANY other Medicine, "it is the very best Remedy known" It is not always so easy to prove it. It is, however, exceedingly gratifying to the proprietor of this Medicine, that, while he declares to the public that this is a most wonderful and effective Specific for Humors, as stated above, he has abundant proof at hand to sustain his statements.

For sixteen years the Humor Doctor has been manufactured and sold, and every year has increased the value of its reputation, and the amount of its sales. In New Hampshire, where it was originated, no remedy for Humors is so highly prized.—An eminent physician (now an army surgeon) when practicing in N H, purchased [illegible] gallons of it, during seven or eight years and used it in his practice He has since then ordered it for the hospital where he was stationed. Other physicians have purchased it, and have used it in practice with great success. When the proprietor lived in New Hampshire, at Goffstown Centre, for the space of thirty or forty miles around, and in Manchester particularly, the Humor Doctor was well known and highly valued for the numerous and wonderful cures which it effected. Though manufactured in large quantities, the supply was frequently exhausted, and purchasers had to wait for more to be made. In that region some very severe cases of Erysipelas were cured. Erysipelas sores, or carbuncles those ugly painful ulcers, were entirely removed wherever this medicine was faithfully used. So it was with Scrofula and Salt Rheum The Humor Doctor cured them.

Since the Proprietor's removal to Melrose, Mass., his present residence, he has been regularly selling it to patients who have applied to him in person and has been very successful in relieving and curing them One case of Erysipelas—of an old man 72 years—is worth mentioning in particular When he came to the Doctor's office he could only wear a pair of old rubber overshoes, his feet and ankles were so swollen and sore. When he pulled off his socks the scales came with them, and the raw bleeding feet, were frightful to behold. Suffice it to say, that less than one dozen bottles of the Humor Doctor (and in a few weeks) healed up those feet and ankles, so that they were smooth and apparently sound. The man was made happy. Numerous cases of pimples on the face have been treated with this medicine, to the entire eradication of them [illegible]

For the sake of showing what is thought of it, a few testimonials are here inserted

MILTON GALE, ESQ., Boston

I hereby certify that I was sorely afflicted with boils for two years, developing themselves upon my limbs, and other parts of my body The sufferings which I endured from them are indescribable. Suffice it to say that I faithfully tried several of the most popular humor remedies, but without removing the affliction. At length, by the earnest request of an intimate friend, I was induced to try Dr J. W. Poland's Humor Doctor, and am very happy to attest that all my boils were removed and my health was restored by using Dr Poland's aforesaid medicine MILTON GALE.

MRS. WHEELER, Stoneham, Mass.

I very confidently and earnestly recommend Dr J W Poland's Humor Doctor as an excellent remedy for Humors, having been wonderfully benefitted by it myself. My own case was a very severe and obstinate one. For more than two years the skin upon the inside of both my hands, and even down upon the wrist, was constantly cracked and broken up, so that I was unable to use my hands in any kind of wet work, and was obliged to wear gloves in sewing to avoid getting blood upon my work — The humor which so afflicted me was probably a combination of Erysipelas and Salt Rheum My general health was quite poor. Soon after I began to use the Humor Doctor I could perceive signs of healing. I continued to take the medicine till I was finally cured. My hands are now perfectly free from humor, and to all appearances my whole system is clear of it, and has been for several months. I used eight bottles before I felt safe to give it entirely up, but they cured me. MARGARET WHEELER.

National Union Bank of Rochester, N Y Closing.
Venango National Bank, Franklin, Pa. Failed.

COUNTERFEIT—FIRST NATIONAL BANK NOTES.

20s, a close imitation of the genuine notes and well calculated to deceive The back of the bill is rather coarse. The plate liable to be altered to any of the National Banks.

HIGHLAND NATIONAL BANK OF NEWBURG, N. Y.

UNITED STATES COMPOUND INTEREST NOTES.

50s, imitation, vig. (on left end) female erect holding sword in left hand, her right hand resting on a shield—male bust, 50 on die above on right end. Well done and likely to deceive good judges.

100s, counterfeits are in circulation. A fac simile of the genuine bill, but the engraving is not so fine They are dated May 15th, 1865. Letter B The green ink on the back of the counterfeit is paler than that in the genuine. Be careful and examine well all before taking them, as they have deceived some of our best officers.

UNITED STATES LEGAL TENDER NOTES.

50s, imitation—poorly done, engraving coarse, and the bills look blurred. The green ink used is lighter than the genuine. [illegible]

100s, imitated Upper left, spread eagle sitting on a rock. [illegible] The vignette of the American Bank Note Company at the top is larger than on the genuine. On the right end of the back of the bill the 100's in the circles are inverted thus "100." In the genuine the 100 in the circles on the left end read thus "001" — in the counterfeit they are thus "100". The paper is also heavier.

NATIONAL BANKS.

1s, altered to 10s—vig. of 1s, two female figures with hands clasped, one pointing upwards. 10s have the figure of Franklin drawing electricity from the clouds [illegible] On back of 1s, is the landing of the Pilgrims. Well done.

5s, altered from 3s, [illegible] the landing of Columbus on back. Look out for this alteration.
